

I am outraged that Sinclair Broadcasting is forcing its television stations to broadcast an anti-Kerry documentary days before this nation's presidential election. This is a real "I told you so" regarding media consolidation, and it illustrates the dangers of too many media outlets in the wrong hands. Wrong meaning those who would use the public airwaves to promote their own ideologies and political agendas.

Those airwaves are free for Sinclair to use, on the condition that the company uses them to serve the public interest. What Sinclair is planning to do is not only NOT in the public interest, but is in fact dangerous to democracy. It's testimony to the need for strengthening media ownership rules. The bottom line is: Sinclair does not deserve to have their stations' licenses renewed. Thank you.
